

Michelle Ka'uhane

Michelle Ka'uhane is Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer at the Hawai'i Community Foundation. She also currently serves as a Trustee of Kamehameha Schools. Previously, she was President and CEO of the Council for Native Hawaiian Advancement, where she advanced lending and investment services to deploy capital in underserved Native Hawaiian communities statewide.

Michelle has more than 20 years of experience in nonprofit management, community-based economic development, and public policy advocacy. She has served on numerous local and national boards and is a member of the Community Advisory Council at the Federal Reserve Bank in Washington, DC, providing perspectives on the economic and financial services needs of low- and moderate-income communities. She earned a B.A. in Communications from Gonzaga University.